IT WAS LUNCH TIME and normally 100 men would have been at work on the fourth floor of this partly finished new rotogravure plant in Philadelphia when it collapsed with this result. As it was, seven men were plunged to the basement of the structure, four being injured seriously. The multi-million dollar plant was being built by the Philadelphia Inquirer.

Company I will be stationed at the Circleville armory. The men will drill for two hours one night each week beginning at 8 o'clock, and they will spend the last two weeks in July at Camp Perry.

FRENCH REDS CHANGE MINDS ON COOPERATION

PARIS, March 22—French Communists threw the government of Premier Paul Ramadier a sudden decision to reconsider their consternation today with a promise to support the socialist regime despite disagreement over Indo-China.

Ramadier immediately called his cabinet together for an emergency discussion of the crisis raised by growing dissatisfaction of the powerful Communist bloc.

His move followed that of the Communist assembly members, who met to decide whether or not to withdraw their support from the coalition administration.

TITO CALLS SLAVS

LONDON, March 22—A Reuters dispatch from Belgrade said today that Marshall Tito has ordered all reserve officers to report for two months of military duty beginning April 1.

French, Russian Leaders Clash

DIFFERENCES ON GERMAN PLANS BRING CLASHES

First Arguments Between Bidault And Molotov Feature Conference

MOSCOW, March 22—French and Soviet representatives at the Moscow conference split sharply for the first time today with the presentation of conflicting proposals for the future German government.

France's foreign minister, Georges Bidault, was to outline a plan for weak German federalization. The Soviet Union's V. M. Molotov proposes a program of strong political unification.

Bidault wants a German government so loosely organized that it will be incapable of gaining control over the new German nation.

Molotov opposes anything that resembles a plan for the dismemberment of Germany.

On the surface, differences among the four powers did not appear to be great. But the mutual fear and suspicion of the western nations and the Soviet Union threatened to be the stumbling block to reconciliation.

The Soviets feared that the other powers planned to use federalization to draw the German states into the western European bloc.

THE OTHER nations expressed belief that unification of Germany would result in eventual Soviet control through the placement of Communists in such key posts as the ministry of interior.

United States and British plans for the future German government were presented yesterday to the foreign ministers council.

In submitting their proposals, both Secretary Marshall and Foreign Minister Bevin stressed the importance of endowing German states with the greatest possible political autonomy as a means of preventing another Hitler from gaining control of the nation.

The British plan, however, calls for a somewhat stronger central government than does that of the United States.

Britain would have a German president and two legislative chambers, one representing the entire nation and the other representing the various German states.

The United States recommendation would limit the central government to one body formed by the heads of the state governments. It does not provide for a German president.

DEMOCRATS HITS 'JAMMING' OF TAX CUT BILL

WASHINGTON, March 22—Rep. Forand (D) R. I., charged today that the Republican tax reduction bill was jammed through the ways and means committee with Democratic members being offered no opportunity to propose any changes.

The patrolmen said Steece apparently lost control of the beer truck traveling north, and it was in collision with the Peters machine and the truck then careened against the Stryker car. The beer truck turned over and kegs and cases upset against the Graves pickup truck.

Peters and Miss Kent, a passenger in his car, were treated in Berger hospital, Circleville for severe bruises, and then removed to their homes. Steece was given treatment in Grant hospital, Columbus. The others received first aid from patrolmen.

Lilienthal Showdown Is Due Monday

WASHINGTON, March 22—The bell sounded today for the final round of the battle over President Truman's appointment of David E. Lilienthal as the nation's atomic chief.

His appointment is officially the order of senate business for Monday. Leaders agreed, however, to handle some supposedly non-controversial bills ahead of it.

As the showdown neared, the odds were with Lilienthal.

International News Service's poll showed 53 senators at least tentatively expected to vote for confirmation, and 30 already to vote against it. Twelve still remained undecided or non-committal.

Announcement that the embryo bank robbers will be released to the FBI was made Saturday by Sheriff Charles Radcliff following a conference with County Prosecutor Kenneth Robbins and Common Pleas Judge William D. Radcliff.

FBI Agent Dan Johnson, Chillicothe, and Sheriff Radcliff and Deputies Vern L. Pontious and Carl Radcliff were questioning the youths Saturday in the jail.

VETO OF PORTAL BILL PREDICTED

Senate Approves Measure To Curb Union Action Against Industry

WASHINGTON, March 22—Sen. Aiken (R) Vt., predicted today that the senate-approved portal pay bill would be the greatest boost labor unions have yet had.

Aiken said that passage of the measure to outlaw pending portal pay suits left unorganized workers no way of protecting their interests, and that they would flock into unions in self defense.

Meanwhile, Minority Whip Lucas (D) Ill., predicted the bill would be vetoed when it reaches the White House.

The bill was sent from the senate to conference with the house, which passed the original measure before slight senate amendments were made.

AIKEN and Sen. Langer (R) N. D. were the only Republicans to vote against the senate bill. Aiken explained that he thought the suits brought against employers for billions of dollars were unjust.

But, he said his decision to vote against the bill was based on a belief that the unorganized employees of small employers had no recourse to just compensation under the measure.

He declared this feature of the bill would force unorganized workers into unions.

Final senate vote on the bill was 64 to 24. Passage came only after the Republican majority beat down numerous Democratic amendments offered under a unanimous consent agreement that allowed no debate.

Among the later amendments offered was one that would have made the nationwide minimum wage 60 cents per hour. This would have by-passed legislation now pending in the labor committee, and was tabled on the plea of labor committee chairman Robert A. Taft (R) Ohio.

LABOR BILL TO FOLLOW INCOME TAX CUT MEASURE

WASHINGTON, March 22—House labor committee members planned today to have a labor bill ready for house action after disposal of the income tax reduction legislation.

Rep. Hartley (R) N. J., committee chairman, said the group will go to work on a rough draft of a bill Tuesday and hopes to finish consideration of it by next Saturday.

SETTLEMENT APPROVED BATAVIA, March 22—Netherlands East Indies officials expressed satisfaction today over the American state department's announcement of a settlement of the dispute over seizure of the cargo aboard the U. S. merchant ship Martin Behrman.

Youths Who Attempted To Rob New Holland Bank Turned Over To FBI

Three Springfield youths, captured 40 minutes after their first attempt at bank robbery proved a fiasco will be turned over to the Federal Bureau of investigation for prosecution in federal court, it was announced Saturday, and the prisoners will be removed Monday from the Pickaway county jail in Circleville.

Announcement that the embryo bank robbers will be released to the FBI was made Saturday by Sheriff Charles Radcliff following a conference with County Prosecutor Kenneth Robbins and Common Pleas Judge William D. Radcliff.

FBI Agent Dan Johnson, Chillicothe, and Sheriff Radcliff and Deputies Vern L. Pontious and Carl Radcliff were questioning the youths Saturday in the jail.

AGREEMENT ON SUGAR SOUGHT

GOP Plans Early Meeting To Extend Rationing, Price Control Programs

WASHINGTON, March 22—A senate Republican conference was summoned today to clear the way for rapid action next week on extending the nation's sugar rationing and price control programs.

The senate conference was prompted by house passage of a bill yesterday to extend the sugar control program until Oct. 31 of this year.

Legislation prepared by the senate by its banking and currency committee would continue the program until March 31, 1948.

The Republican conference will seek to bring the two measures into conformity before the ration program automatically expires March 31. The price control program is scheduled to end June 30.

A bill agreeable to both houses of congress is expected to come up for senate approval Monday.

Both the senate and house measures provide that the control powers be turned over to the secretary of agriculture.

The house bill encountered little opposition in its passage by a 286 to 54 votes.

Major discussion centered on an amendment offered by Rep. Dirksen, (R) Ill., to extend a blanket pardon to all OPA violators against whom trials are still pending.

Dirksen's amendment would have exempted three items still not decontrolled-rent, rice and sugar.

Wells declares his injuries necessitated amputation of his left leg above the knee and that the use of his right leg has been "permanently impaired."

Police Seek Brother Of Rich Recluse Found Dead

NEW YORK, March 22—Lang Collyer, eccentric recluse, was sought today to provide the answers to the strange death of his blind, paralyzed brother, Homer.

Homer's body was found in the ancient Fifth avenue brownstone building in Harlem yesterday after police had struggled for two hours to force an entrance into the house.

Police were unable to find any trace of Langley who had taken care of his brother for nearly 40 years. Both of the Collyer brothers were over 70 years old.

For the last two decades they had lived the lives of hermits in a district teeming with thousands of neighbors. The house was boarded up and police in making an entry into the three story building had to put ladders up to the second floor. All the lower floors of the house were packed with paper and junk which the Collyers had been saving for years.

Police said the basement and first floor of the house were jammed with neatly packed stacks of paper and odd items. They believe that a thorough search may uncover the body of the missing brother, and the search was to be continued today.

The Collyer brothers were said by neighbors to be wealthy. They had no gas, water, electricity or sewer connection in their home and admitted no one into the house.

United Nations Awaiting New Gesture Of Support From U. S. Government

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., March 22—The United Nations is anxiously awaiting today for a decisive gesture of far-reaching support from the United States government on America's future participation in the international organization.

Although a number of reassuring pronouncements already have come to that effect from governmental keymen in Washington, various delegates and officials at Lake Success are agreed that a concrete move from the White House or congress is called for to remove pose and procedure of U. N. in basic international moves.

In official circles here it is generally felt that Austin's success in persuading the American government to give a convincing demonstration of faith in U. N. would contribute considerably toward easing the international atmosphere.

Diplomatic observers point out that any powerful boost the United States is capable of offering would come at a moment when the United Nations faces one of its most decisive programs of activity, which ranges from disarmament, atom control and trusteeships to dealing in international disputes such as the Corfu channel incident.

MONDAY, the leading big five powers will give the first hints of their intentions on future arms curtailment when the en-nation disarmament commission holds its inaugural meeting. The United States, Britain and Soviet Russia have prepared (Continued on Page Two)

$75,000 DAMAGE SUIT IS FILED

Columbus Man Asks Judgment As Result Of Hunting Accident In County

Judgment for $75,000 is asked in a damage suit filed Saturday in Pickaway county common pleas court by Charles S. Wells, Columbus, against Charles Moss, Route 2, Ashville. The action is the result of a hunting accident which occurred on a Pickaway county farm on Feb. 2, 1946.

Wells alleges that he was permanently injured when he was struck by a blast from a 12-gauge shotgun in the hands of Moss. He says that at 4:30 p. m. on the date mentioned he and Moss were walking in a field, that he was about four feet ahead of Moss and that the latter "negligently" fired the shotgun.

Wells declares his injuries necessitated amputation of his left leg above the knee and that the use of his right leg has been "permanently impaired."

The discussions are going on between the state department and the British embassy in Washington. Informed observers believed that some method of getting the difficult case before U. N. would be found.

Forecasters said that it probably would stay cool today and through tonight, but that clearing conditions tomorrow would give the state full benefit of the sun.

Temperatures tomorrow afternoon were predicted to range near 50 in northern Ohio and around 60 degrees in the south.

Snow, which greeted the advent of Spring yesterday, was just about gone, although the highway department reported roads slippery in spots east of Cleveland, Akron, Millersburg and St. Clairsville.

U. S. READY TO SET UP OWN KOREAN GOVERNMENT

WASHINGTON, March 2—The United States today expects to issue within the next few weeks a plan for setting up an independent, self-governing state in the American zone in Korea.

The plan, actively being considered by high government officials, is designed to counter the effects of the failure of Soviet officials to carry out a commitment to unify the strategic area's economy and politics.

ACHESON SEEKS TO MAKE PUBLIC BIG FOUR PACTS

Few Secrets On Tehran, Yalta, Potsdam Talks Not Revealed

WASHINGTON, March 22—Acting Secretary of State Acheson intimated that the United States may make public today the complete texts of the Tehran, Yalta, and Potsdam agreements, including any secret provisions that may still exist.

Acheson said he has been endeavoring for the past 36 hours to obtain official clearance for publication of the wartime pacts, which were entered into by Premier Stalin, Winston Churchill and the late President Roosevelt.

Disclosure of the complete texts was requested Thursday by Rep. Mundt (R) S. D. at the opening of hearings before the house foreign affairs committee.

Mundt told Acheson that if any secret commitments still existed, he did not see how the committee could act intelligently on President Truman's request for 400 million dollars in economic and military assistance to enable Greece and Turkey to stave off Communist control.

ACHESON said that contingent upon his "obtaining permission" the texts would be made available today.

Another state department spokesman declared that if they were not made public today, they would be released Sunday or Monday.

It was believed the state department was seeking the approval of Secretary of State Marshall who is attending the four-power conference in Moscow and perhaps that of the Soviet and British governments as well.

Mundt declared that if "all the facts" were not made available, he would continue his efforts to induce the state department to reveal them.

THERE HAS been considerable conjecture over whether any secret commitments entered into by the three wartime leaders still exist. The last to be made public was the disclosure that the United States had agreed to turn over to Russia the strategic Kurile islands in the northern Pacific.

Acheson insisted, however, that only a few minor details—(Continued on Page Two) he termed them "unimportant sandwiches" — still remain unknown. He said:

"Practically all of it has been made public. It is going to prove a great disappointment to many people."

Many members of congress have sought unsuccessfully since the end of the war to obtain the complete texts of the agreements, which the United States, Great Britain and Soviet Russia entered into the historic conferences in Iran, the Crimea and Germany.

into the bank and yelled "This is a holdup—where is the money?"

When George Kirk, bank president, replied there was no money the amateur bank bandits repeated several times their demand for money. Each time they got the same answer from Kirk. All the while Cashier John Dick and Assistant Cashier Robert Kirkpatrick were counting money on a table in the banking room.

Dick slipped out a rear door to summon aid. The slamming of the door so frightened the two embryo Dillingers that they fled to the waiting automobile which sped east toward Circleville 17 miles away.

At 10:30 a. m.—just 40 minutes later—the blue sedan rolled into London and the three would-be bank robbers fell into the arms of the law.

The alarm had been spread throughout Ohio. Cordon of police, sheriff's deputies, and state highway patrolmen had scores of roads blocked.

MIRRORS AND ROOTS . . .

Mirrors may reflect the character of man, just as water reflects growing trees or other life. Looking into a mirror, one may see in his own face the story of the kind of life he has led. As a person grows to maturity, and into the later years of life, the kind of a man he has been may be read in the lines of his face. His own mirror will tell him the story in bold relief.

In early life a man begins to send down his roots into the "soil" of his life. If they are good roots, they bring forth good fruit. If they are evil, they bring forth bad fruit. In short, as the twig is bent, the tree inclines.

So in this picture of a swamp in which cypress trees are growing, a story is told for man which has been told generation after generation. In the mirror-like surface of the swamp, man may look in his mind's eye read deeply into his own past. He may see in these cypress trees a symbol of his own life. To him, the tree may represent good or bad, as the habits of his life may suggest.

A good habit, that will bring forth happy and fruitful memories, is regular church attendance. Good roots are sent into the foundation of a man's life by the teachings of his church and Sunday School. His face will mirror a clean character and a worthy purpose in life if he will uphold the principles of the Christian church.

Sunday School Lesson

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL
(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for March 23 is John 17, the Memory Verse being James 5:16, "Pray for one another.")

IN THIS lesson Jesus and His disciples are somewhere in or near Jerusalem, and most probably out of doors, not far from the Kedron river. In crossing the river they would come to the Mount of Olives and the Garden of Gethsemane. This was the evening of the day before His arrest, as it was in the last week's lesson.

With the last words of that lesson, "I have overcome the world," Jesus "lifted up His eyes to heaven," and began a prayer to His Father in Heaven to take care of these men whom He loved, and to strengthen them in their work when He was gone from them.

"Father, the hour is come," He said, "glorify Thy Son, that Thy Son also may glorify Thee."

It is a triumphant petition, although Jesus knew that in a few short hours He would suffer a cruel death.

"Now they have known that all things whatsoever Thou hast given Me are of Thee. For I have given unto them the words which Thou gavest Me; and they have received them; and they have known surely that I came out from Thee, and they have believed that Thou didst send Me."

"Sanctify them through Thy truth: Word thy truth.

"As Thou hast sent Me into the world, even so have I also sent them into the world."

"And for their sakes I sanctify myself, that they also might be sanctified through the truth."

"Neither pray I for these alone, but for them also which shall believe on Me through their word."

Asks That They May Share Glory

He asked God, His Father, not only to keep His disciples from evil, but that "they may be with Me where I am; that they may behold My glory which Thou hast given Me."

"O righteous Father, the world hath not known Thee: but I have known Thee, and these have known that Thou hast sent Me.

"And I have declared unto them Thy name, and will declare it:

"that the love wherewith Thou hast loved Me, may be in them, and I in them."

This was the last gathering these friends had together. Except for the few times the disciples saw the Master after His resurrection, they had no further association with Him. They still seemed not to understand what was to befall Him in a very short time, but all their lives they undoubtedly remembered this prayer of His and it strengthened them for the work they had to do;

But He knew too that, with God's help, they would redeem themselves and carry on the work for which He had come into the world, and for which He had called them. He had faith in them, although He knew their weaknesses.

Jesus Prays for Disciples

"I pray for them: I pray not for the world, but for them which Thou hast given Me; for they are Thine."

One wonders what these men, His close friends, thought of as their Lord stood in their midst uttering these prayers. Would they remember them when He was gone?

EXIT PRUSSIA

AN EPOCH-MAKING event recently went almost unnoticed. The Allies decided to abolish Prussia. This long-time cock of the German roost is going to be dissected, and made to disgorge the territory he has swallowed up for centuries.

Ever since the Middle Ages, when the military-religious order of the Teutonic Knights set out to convert the heathen Slavs, the Prussian lands have been spearheads of the German drive to the East. They had a long duel with Poland, ending apparently in the complete victory of the Poles. Unfortunately the Prussian state was allowed to retain its life, and little by little built up its power until it finally dominated all Germany, and sought through Germany to dominate the world. The word "Prussian" has long meant a hard-boiled, merciless, efficient type whose full flowering was seen in the Nazis.

East Prussia, an outpost separated by Poland from the rest of Germany, is now Russian. Western Prussia included former self-governing states like Hanover and Saxony. They will presumably be allowed such self-governing powers as the Allies grant any German state. What will be done with territory comprising the original Prussia has not been announced. But Prussia, the great disturber, will trouble Europe no more.

NEW RULES FOR BABIES

MODERN grandmothers are getting a break. The authorities on baby-care, who a generation ago frowned on holding a baby, now say he should be fondled, talked to, played with. "Interaction" is the word they use for it. According to such learned folk as Dr. Rene Spitz of the New York Psychoanalytic Institute and Dr. Margaret Mead, anthropologist, babies can't get too much of it.

Grandmothers raised the parents of these present-day lucky youngsters by the method of leaving them pretty much to themselves in cribs and pens. Babies weren't supposed to be handled in those days. It would do terrible things to them, give them mother-complexes—make them like their parents too much. That was bad for a baby, so the experts said in those days.

Now grandma finds all that was wrong, and she wonders how her children turned out as well as they did. But she hasn't too much time to think about it, for she hears her grandson yelling upstairs. He's awake, demanding some of that "interaction". She hurries up to administer it, all she wants. The specialist says, she remembers, he can't get too much of it.

There are still, however, those who believe there are values in moderation.

We hope it isn't true that the United Nations are growing less so.

Seems as if the human race gets ahead mostly by turning around and backing up.

What impresses us most about the Moscow statesmen is their immense modesty.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, March 22 — American news dispatches from the Moscow conference said our delegation was "embarrassed" and "the Americans shifted uneasily in their seats" when Molotov pulled from the secret files of the past, the Yalta agreement, promising Russia half of $20,000,000 reparations from Germany. There was no valid reason for any reasonable person to be embarrassed or uneasy.

Truth is Russia has probably already taken more than her allotted half—more than $10,000,000 of the dollar value at the time of the Yalta agreement. You, who have read these dispatches, know she took the paper off German walls, machinery which we had to recapture to run the Berlin subway, everything she could lay her hands on. German machinery is to day strewn out all over Russian railroad sidings. The inept Russians have merely made it lose its value by putting it to little or no use, because it can be no more valuable to anyone than the sum total of what it produces. Of course no one outside Russia knows the itemized list of it, items taken secretly as they were, behind the iron curtain of censorship. But certainly any baby knows enough was taken to keep anyone from being embarrassed about reparations, unless Russia wishes to be embarrassed and open East Germany to make some accounting.

The astonishing phase is our "uneasy" and "embarrassed" delegation made no mention of this matter, did not demand opening of East Germany to find out how much has been taken or make any accusations. (Our military has some of the facts.)

Inside reason for this strange omission of the plain facts of reparations looting to date is possibly due to a quite secret story, current in our official quarters, as to the nature of the Yalta conference.

Mr. Roosevelt is supposed to have been somewhat ill, as was also Mr. Churchill. It was once said Mr. Roosevelt forgot to have a copy made of the Yalta agreements, and a government official once told me, the agreement at Yalta was recorded in American files only by certain personal notes of James Byrnes (then an unofficial adviser) which he made for his own use and placed in the safe at his home. Once Byrnes is supposed to have been sent to his South Carolina residence hurriedly by Mr. Roosevelt to find out what Mr. Roosevelt did agree to at Yalta. The American delegation at Moscow may have known this inside story and felt some embarrassment about the entire subject for this reason.

General Marshall, at any rate, made an adequate legal and diplomatic answer to Molotov by pointing out that Potsdam superseded and nullified Yalta (this is plainly true). However his was a sort of defensive answer, and if he had raised the question of how much the Russians have already looted out of Germany he would have put them on the defensive. Personally I would have raised that question and required the Russians at least to come forward with public acknowledgment of what they have done.

The Russians are getting away similarly with many delusions on the American public—and this may further explain our embarrassment in Moscow. The key delusion behind all this may be the fact that most of the American people believe Russia has lifted one porthole in the iron curtain to let the world see freely without censorship its own conference. In a way it has. Yet the whole (unproclaimed) truth is the American newsmen must use Russian facilities to get out their news, Russian telephones, telegraph instruments, radio—all manned by Russians.

Treating Mouth Disorders

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

IN our enthusiasm for vitamins and their role in overcoming deficiency diseases, we are sometimes likely to forget that other elements, some of them familiar to our grandfathers as remedies, also play an important part in keeping the body in a healthy state.

Dr. Darby treated six patients who had cracking at the angles of the mouth and inflammation of the lining membrane of the mouth. Some of these patients improved greatly with the administration of an iron preparation alone. Others improved with the iron after they had failed to be benefited by various B-complex vitamins.

A Common Cause

Dr. Darby therefore concludes that iron deficiency alone is a common cause of these mouth disorders. Sometimes the mouth condition may be accompanied by poor appetite, lack of acid in the stomach, enlargement of the spleen in the left upper part of the abdomen and a lessening of the color in the blood.

Deficiency of Iron

Now Dr. William J. Darby of Nashville, reminds us that all these things may also be the result of deficiency of iron. One patient he treated had pain and burning in the stomach and chest after meals. Her mouth was constantly sore. She was treated with niacin, a part of the vitamin B-complex, but did not improve. Later on burning of the tongue developed. Even a mixture of B-complex vitamins failed to give relief. Tests which were carried out showed that she was suffering from an iron deficiency. A mixture of an iron-containing preparation with vitamin B-complex was started and within a week her mouth was well. The administration of the iron was continued and a complete cure resulted.

NO MORE CHANGING TO GAS HEAT FROM OTHER FUELS

An emergency having been created by the unprecedented demand for gas for space heating purposes and the inability of the Company and its suppliers to purchase or obtain necessary pipe and equipment to make additional gas supplies to meet all present and prospective increases in demands, the following temporary rules governing gas and gas burning equipment for space heating purposes became effective March 1, 1947, and will remain in effect until amended or cancelled. This condition has been covered by a temporary order of the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio, dated February 28, 1947, which is summarized as follows:

NO residence or place of business depending upon fuel other than gas as its principal source of space heating shall be permitted to change to gas-fired equipment.

THE only exceptions to No. 1, shall be those few cases where unusual medical hardship is involved. Such exceptions shall be determined by The Gas Company after complete evidence satisfactory to the Company has been submitted.

NEWLY constructed premises with heating equipment exclusively designed for gas are eligible for gas heating upon proper application to The Gas Company.

WORN out or outmoded gas heating equipment in existing buildings may be replaced with other gas-fired equipment provided the gas burning capacity is not increased and provided proper application is cleared with The Gas Company.

UPON discovering installations of gas heating equipment made in violation of these stated conditions, The Ohio Fuel Gas Company will give the customer written notice to disconnect such equipment. If such equipment is not disconnected from the lines within 10 days of receiving the written notice, the Company will disconnect the customer's complete gas service.

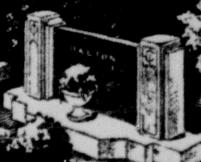

Copies of this Order by the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio are available for inspection at offices of The Gas Company and have been furnished all known dealers of major gas heating equipment in the territory we serve.

Your understanding attitude and excellent cooperation during these temporary emergencies has not gone unnoticed. We say gratefully, "Thank You . . . for keeping faith with us . . . We will not let you down."

The Russian government which controls all these instruments knows instantly every word sent out by the conference if not before. No words have been deleted the last check I made (this week.) Indeed one reporter asked Russians on the street for a story of what they thought about the conference, which seemed to be a slight transgression on Russian generosity in letting the world know what its representatives were doing in Russia. But the overall truth of the matter is that in Moscow a reporter might have ideas he would regret having had once he gets home. I heard a great leader once say he used to go out to California annually and make great decisions swiftly in the balmy air there. But when he came back to New York and started thinking his decisions over, he changed every one of them back to his original idea. Travel may broaden one too much and travel to Moscow might even broaden a logical man into embarrassment and uneasiness.

IT WAS LUNCH TIME and normally 100 men would have been at work on the fourth floor of this partly finished new rotogravure plant in Philadelphia when it collapsed with this result. As it was, seven men were plunged to the basement of the structure, four being injured seriously. The multi-million dollar plant was being built by the Philadelphia Inquirer.

Clifton Named Captain Of Co. I; Meets Tuesday

Jack Clifton will head as captain the new National Guard Unit in Circleville with C. E. Scott as first lieutenant. The first such unit formed here since World War II is known as Rifle Company I, 3rd Battalion, 166th Infantry, 37th Division.

The federal government, it was announced Saturday, has issued full equipment and uniforms for 188 enlisted men and 7 officers.

CAPTAIN Clifton served as captain in the 2nd Division in World War II, and Lieut. Scott also saw active service.

Company I will be stationed at the Circleville armory. The men will drill for two hours one night each week beginning at 8 o'clock, and they will spend the last two weeks in July at Camp Perry.

First meeting will be Tuesday night.

The company roster is now open to all eligible men from 18 to 34 years of age. Men over 34 having military experience are also acceptable as guardsmen.

APPLICANTS should get in touch with Captain Clifton.

Non-commissioned posts still open include first sergeant, supply sergeant, and clerk, and applicants with previous service in those same ranks will be given preference.

It was pointed out that men

FRENCH REDS CHANGE MINDS ON COOPERATION

PARIS, March 22—French Communists threw the government of Premier Paul Ramadier a sudden decision to reconsider its consternation today with a promise to support the socialist regime despite disagreement over Indo-China.

Ramadier immediately called his cabinet together for an emergency discussion of the crisis raised by growing dissatisfaction of the powerful Communist bloc.

His move followed that of the Communist assembly members, who met to decide whether or not to withdraw their support from the coalition administration.

TITO CALLS SLAVS

LONDON, March 22—A Reuters dispatch from Belgrade said today that Marshall Tito has ordered all reserve officers to report for two months of military duty beginning April 1.

French, Russian Leaders Clash

DIFFERENCES ON GERMAN PLANS BRING CLASHES

First Arguments Between Bidault And Molotov Feature Conference

MOSCOW, March 22—French and Soviet representatives at the Moscow conference split sharply for the first time today with the presentation of conflicting proposals for the future German government.

France's foreign minister, Georges Bidault, was to outline a plan for weak German federalization. The Soviet Union's V. M. Molotov proposes a program of strong political unification.

Bidault wants a German government so loosely organized that it will be incapable of gaining control over the new German nation.

Molotov opposes anything that resembles a plan for the dismemberment of Germany.

On the surface, differences among the four powers did not appear to be great. But the mutual fear and suspicion of the western nations and the Soviet Union threatened to be the stumbling block to reconciliation.

The Soviets feared that the other powers planned to use federalization to draw the German states into the western European bloc.

THE OTHER nations expressed belief that unification of Germany would result in eventual Soviet control through the placement of Communists in such key posts as the ministry of interior.

United States and British plans for the future German government were presented yesterday to the foreign ministers council.

In submitting their proposals, both Secretary Marshall and Foreign Minister Bevin stressed the importance of endowing German states with the greatest possible political autonomy as a means of preventing another Hitler from gaining control of the nation.

The British plan, however, calls for a somewhat stronger central government than does that of the United States.

Britain would have a German president and two legislative chambers, one representing the entire nation and the other representing the various German states.

The United States recommendation would limit the central government to one body formed by the heads of the state governments. It does not provide for a German president.

DEMOCRATS HITS 'JAMMING' OF TAX CUT BILL

WASHINGTON, March 22—Rep. Forand (D) R. I., charged today that the Republican tax reduction bill was jammed through the ways and means committee with Democratic members being offered no opportunity to propose any changes.

Forand conceded passage of the four billion dollar tax-cut bill, probably next Thursday, after two days of debate. Sponsored by Rep. Knutson (R) Minn., it would give 20 million low-income taxpayers a 30 per cent cut and other taxpayers a 20 per cent slash.

The democratic committee member declared that when his group met in closed session yesterday to act on the bill, Chairman Knutson would not permit him to offer an amendment.

Forand said Knutson also refused a request that the minority be permitted to offer a substitute for the GOP bill when it reached the floor.

BATAVIA, March 22—Netherlands East Indies officials expressed satisfaction today over the American state department's announcement of a settlement of the dispute over seizure of the cargo aboard the U. S. merchant ship Martin Behrman.

Lilienthal Showdown Is Due Monday

WASHINGTON, March 22—The bell sounded today for the final round of the battle over President Truman's appointment of David E. Lilienthal as the nation's atomic chief.

His appointment is officially the order of senate business for Monday. Leaders agreed, however, to handle some supposedly non-control-versial bills ahead of it.

As the showdown neared, the odds were with Lilienthal.

International News Service's poll showed 53 senators at least tentatively expected to vote for confirmation, and 30 already to vote against it. Twelve still remained undecided or non-committal.

VETO OF PORTAL BILL PREDICTED

Senate Approves Measure To Curb Union Action Against Industry

WASHINGTON, March 22—Sen. Aiken (R) Vt., predicted today that the senate-approved portal pay bill would be the greatest boost labor unions have yet had.

Aiken said that passage of the measure to outlaw pending portal pay suits left unorganized workers no way of protecting their interests, and that they would flock into unions in self defense.

Meanwhile, Minority Whip Lucas (D) Ill., predicted the bill would be vetoed when it reaches the White House.

The bill was sent from the senate to conference with the house, which passed the original measure before slight senate amendments were made.

AIKEN and Sen. Langer (R) N. D. were the only Republicans to vote against the senate bill.

Aiken explained that he thought the suits brought against employers for billions of dollars were unjust.

But, he said his decision to vote against the bill was based on a belief that the unorganized employees of small employers had no recourse to just compensation under the measure.

He declared this feature of the bill would force unorganized workers into unions.

Final senate vote on the bill was 64 to 24. Passage came only after the Republican majority beat down numerous Democratic amendments offered under a unanimous consent agreement that allowed no debate.

Among the later amendments offered was one that would have made the nationwide minimum wage 60 cents per hour. This would have by-passed legislation now pending in the labor committee, and was tabled on the plea of labor committee chairman Robert A. Taft (R) Ohio.

LABOR BILL TO FOLLOW INCOME TAX CUT MEASURE

WASHINGTON, March 22—House labor committee members planned today to have a labor bill ready for house action after disposal of the income tax reduction legislation.

Rep. Hartley (R) N. J., committee chairman, said the group will go to work on a rough draft of a bill Tuesday and hopes to finish consideration of it by next Saturday.

Announcement that the embryo bank robbers will be released to the FBI was made Saturday by Sheriff Charles Radcliff following a conference with County Prosecutor Kenneth Robbins and Common Pleas Judge William D. Radcliff.

FBI Agent Dan Johnson, Chillicothe, and Sheriff Radcliff and Deputies Vern L. Pontious and Carl Radcliff were questioning the youths Saturday in the jail.

AGREEMENT ON SUGAR SOUGHT

GOP Plans Early Meeting To Extend Rationing, Price Control Programs

WASHINGTON, March 22—A senate Republican conference was summoned today to clear the way for rapid action next week on extending the nation's sugar rationing and price control program.

The senate conference was prompted by house passage of a bill yesterday to extend the sugar control program until Oct. 31 of this year.

Legislation prepared by the senate by its banking and currency committee would continue the program until March 31, 1948.

The Republican conference will seek to bring the two measures into conformity before the ration program automatically expires June 31. The price control program is scheduled to end June 30.

A bill agreeable to both houses of congress is expected to come up for senate approval Monday.

Both the senate and house measures provide that the control powers be turned over to the secretary of agriculture.

The house bill encountered little opposition in its passage by a 286 to 54 votes.

Major discussion centered on an amendment offered by Rep. Dirksen, (R) Ill., to extend a blanket pardon to all OPA violators against whom trials are still pending.

Dirksen's amendment would have exempted three items still not decontrolled-rent, rice and sugar.

Police Seek Brother Of Rich Recluse Found Dead

NEW YORK, March 22—Langley Collyer, eccentric recluse, was sought today to provide the answers to the strange death of his blind, paralyzed brother, Homer.

Homer's body was found in the ancient Fifth avenue brownstone building in Harlem yesterday after police had struggled for two hours to force an entrance into the house.

Police were unable to find any trace of Langley who had taken care of his brother for nearly 40 years. Both of the Collyer brothers were over 70 years old.

For the last two decades they had lived the lives of hermits in a district teeming with thousands of neighbors. The house was boarded up and police in making an entry into the three story building had to put ladders up to the second floor. All the lower floors of the house were packed with paper and junk which the Collyers had been saving for years.

Police said the basement and first floor of the house were jammed with neatly packed stacks of paper and odd items. They believe that a thorough search may uncover the body of the missing brother, and the search was to be continued today.

The Collyer brothers were said by neighbors to be wealthy. They had no gas, water, electricity or sewer connection in their home and admitted no one into the house.

ACHESON SEEKS TO MAKE PUBLIC BIG FOUR PACTS

Few Secrets On Tehran, Yalta, Potsdam Talks Not Revealed

WASHINGTON, March 22—Acting Secretary of State Acheson intimated that the United States may make public today the complete texts of the Tehran, Yalta and Potsdam agreements, including any secret provisions that may still exist.

Acheson said he has been endeavoring for the past 36 hours to obtain official clearance for publication of the wartime pacts, which were entered into by Premier Stalin, Winston Churchill and the late President Roosevelt.

Disclosure of the complete texts was requested Thursday by Rep. Mundt (R) S. D. at the opening of hearings before the house foreign affairs committee.

Mundt told Acheson that if any secret commitments still existed, he did not see how the committee could act intelligently on President Truman's request for 400 million dollars in economic and military assistance to enable Greece and Turkey to stave off Communist control.

MONDAY, the leading big five powers will give the first hints of their intentions on future arms curtailment when the en-nation disarmament commission holds its inaugural meeting. The United States, Britain and Soviet Russia have prepared (Continued on Page Two)

$75,000 DAMAGE SUIT IS FILED

Columbus Man Asks Judgment As Result Of Hunting Accident In County

Judgment for $75,000 is asked in a damage suit filed Saturday in Pickaway county common pleas court by Charles S. Wells, Columbus, against Charles Moss, Route 2, Ashville. The action is the result of a hunting accident which occurred on a Pickaway county farm on Feb. 2, 1946.

Wells alleges that he was permanently injured when he was struck by a blast from a 12-gauge shotgun in the hands of Moss. He says that at 4:30 p. m. on the date mentioned he and Moss were walking in a field, that he was about four feet ahead of Moss and that the latter "negligently" fired the shotgun.

Wells declares his injuries necessitated amputation of his left leg above the knee and that the use of his right leg has been "permanently impaired."

The discussions are going on between the state department and the British embassy in Washington. Informed observers believed that some method of getting the difficult case before the United Nations would be found.

Chief obstacle to an early formal assembly meeting is U. N. Secretary general Trygve Lie who has pleaded that his budget is too small to call a special formal session of representatives of all United Nations members.

Instead, he believes that his office should appoint a special commission to make a first hand study of the Palestine situation.

U. S. READY TO SET UP OWN KOREAN GOVERNMENT

WASHINGTON, March 22—The United States today expects to issue within the next few weeks a plan for setting up an independent, self-governing state in the American zone in Korea.

The plan, actively being considered by high government officials, is designed to counter the effects of the failure of Soviet officials to carry out a commitment to unify the strategic area's economy and politics.

EXIT PRUSSIA

AN EPOCH-MAKING event recently went almost unnoticed. The Allies decided to abolish Prussia. This long-time cock of the German roost is going to be dissected, and made to disgorge the territory he has swallowed up for centuries.

Ever since the Middle Ages, when the military-religious order of the Teutonic Knights set out to convert the heathen Slavs, the Prussian lands have been spearheads of the German drive to the East. They had a long duel with Poland, ending apparently in the complete victory of the Poles. Unfortunately the Prussian state was allowed to retain its life, and little by little built up its power until it finally dominated all Germany, and sought through Germany to dominate the world. The word "Prussian" has long meant a hard-boiled, merciless, efficient type whose full flowering was seen in the Nazis.

East Prussia, an outpost separated by Poland from the rest of Germany, is now Russian. Western Prussia included former self-governing states like Hanover and Saxony. They will presumably be allowed such self-governing powers as the Allies grant any German state. What will be done with territory comprising the original Prussia has not been announced. But Prussia, the great disturber, will trouble Europe no more.

NEW RULES FOR BABIES

MODERN grandmothers are getting a break. The authorities on baby-care, who a generation ago frowned on holding a baby, now say he should be fondled, talked to, played with. "Interaction" is the word they use for it. According to such learned folk as Dr. Rene Spitz of the New York Psychoanalytic Institute and Dr. Margaret Mead, anthropologist, babies can't get too much of it.

Grandmothers raised the parents of these present-day lucky youngsters by the method of leaving them pretty much to themselves in cribs and pens. Babies weren't supposed to be handled in those days. It would do terrible things to them, give them mother-complexes—make them like their parents too much. That was bad for a baby, so the experts said in those days.

Now grandma finds all that was wrong, and she wonders how her children turned out as well as they did. But she hasn't too much time to think about it, for she hears her grandson yelling upstairs. He's awake, demanding some of that "interaction". She hurries up to administer it, all she wants. The specialist say, she remembers, he can't get too much of it.

There are still, however, those who believe there are values in moderation.

We hope it isn't true that the United Nations are growing less so.

Seems as if the human race gets ahead mostly by turning around and backing up.

What impresses us most about the Moscow statesmen is their immense modesty.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, March 22 — American news dispatches from the Moscow conference said our delegation was "embarrassed" and "the Americans shifted uneasily in their seats" when Molotov pulled from the secret files of the past, the Yalta agreement, promising Russia half of $20,000,000,000 reparations from Germany. There was no valid reason for any reasonable person to be embarrassed or uneasy.

Truth is Russia has probably already taken more than her allotted half—more than $10,000,000,000 of the dollar value at the time of the Yalta agreement. You, who have read these dispatches, know she took the paper off German walls, machinery which we had to recapture to run the Berlin subway, everything she could lay her hands on. German machinery is today strewn out all over Russian railroad sidings. The inept Russians have merely made it lose its value by putting it to little or no use, because it can be no more valuable to anyone than the sum total of what it produces. Of course no one outside Russia knows the itemized list of it, items taken secretly as they were, behind the iron curtain of censorship. But certainly any baby knows enough was taken to keep anyone from being embarrassed about reparations, unless Russia wishes to be embarrassed and open East Germany to make some accounting.

The astonishing phase is our "uneasy" and "embarrassed" delegation in a de no mention of this matter, did not demand opening of East Germany to find out how much has been taken or make any accusations. (Our military has some of the facts.)

Inside reason for this strange omission of the plain facts of reparations looting to date is possibly due to a quite secret story, current in our official quarters, as to the nature of the Yalta conference. Mr. Roosevelt is supposed to have been somewhat ill, as was also Mr. Churchill. It was once said Mr. Roosevelt forgot to have a copy made of the Yalta agreements, and a government official once told me, the agreement at Yalta was recorded in American files only by certain personal notes of James Byrnes (then an unofficial adviser) which he made for his own use and placed in the safe at his home. Once Byrnes is supposed to have been sent to his South Carolina residence hurriedly by Mr. Roosevelt to find out what Mr. Roosevelt did agree to at Yalta. The American delegation at Moscow may have known this inside story and felt some embarrassment about the entire subject for this reason.

General Marshall, at any rate, made an adequate legal and diplomatic answer to Molotov by pointing out that Potsdam succeeded and nullified Yalta (this is plainly true). However his was a sort of defensive answer, and if he had raised the question of how much the Russians have already looted out of Germany he would have put them on the defensive. Personally I would have raised that question and required the Russians at least to come forward with public acknowledgment of what they have done.

The Russians are getting away similarly with many delusions on the American public—and this may further explain our embarrassment in Moscow. The key delusion behind all this may be the fact that most of the American people believe Russia has lifted one port hole in the iron curtain to let the world see freely without censorship its own conference. In a way it has. Yet the whole (unproclaimed) truth is the American newsmen must use Russian facilities to get out their news, Russian telephones, telegraph instruments, radio—all manned by Russians.

DIET AND HEALTH

Treating Mouth Disorders

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

IN our enthusiasm for vitamins and their role in overcoming deficiency diseases, we are sometimes likely to forget that other elements, some of them familiar to our grandfathers as remedies, also play an important part in keeping the body in a healthy state.

For instance, during recent years it was recognized that certain conditions affecting the mouth were due to a lack of some of the vitamins which go to make up the B-complex. Changes in the little swellings on the tongue, called papillae indicated a lack of niacin as did inflammation of the mouth while cracks at the angles of the mouth meant to most doctors that the patient was not getting enough riboflavin or B-2.

Deficiency of Iron

Now Dr. William J. Derby of Nashville, reminds us that all these things may also be the result of deficiency of iron. One patient he treated had pain and burning in the stomach and chest after meals. Her mouth was constantly sore. She was treated with niacin, a part of the vitamin B-complex, but did not improve. Later on burning of the tongue developed. Even a mixture of B-complex vitamins failed to give relief. Tests which were carried out showed that she was suffering from an iron deficiency. A mixture of an iron-containing preparation with vitamin B-complex was started and within a week her mouth was better. The administration of the iron was continued and a complete cure resulted.

Dr. Derby treated six patients who had cracking at the angles of the mouth and inflammation of the lining membrane of the mouth. Some of these patients improved greatly with the administration of an iron preparation alone. Others improved with the iron after they had failed to be benefited by various B-complex vitamins.

A Common Cause

Dr. Derby therefore concludes that iron deficiency alone is a common cause of these mouth disorders. Sometimes the mouth condition may be accompanied by poor appetite, lack of acid in the stomach, enlargement of the spleen in the left upper part of the abdomen and a lessening of the coloring in the blood.

When patients have these mouth disorders, a careful study should be made including a determination of the amount of coloring in the blood. There is also a test which can be made which entails the giving of iron which has been made radioactive by electrical treatments. If a person absorbs or takes up more than 5 per cent of the dose of radioactive iron which is given by mouth, it means that he is suffering from an iron deficiency. If an iron deficiency is present the physician will prescribe the proper iron preparation to overcome the difficulty.

Looking Back In Pickaway County

FIVE YEARS AGO

Stooge club members have selected Howdy Gorman's orchestra to play for their dance April 10.

Sugar rationing: Sign up to be started April 28.

Dick Mader returned to the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Mader, East Main street, after spending the past three months in Kansas City, Kansas.

TEN YEARS AGO

Chamber of Commerce voted unanimously, Monday noon, in favor of erection of a system of boulevard lights in Circleville.

• THERE IS OVERWHELMING SENTIMENT in Congress for extension of rent controls which expire June 30. But a major fight is in prospect over the proposal for a flat increase in rents.

The Senate banking committee is expected, in the next two or three weeks, to report rent control extension legislation to the Senate and a strong effort will be made to nail a flat rent boost of 10 or 15 per cent to the committee bill.

Indications are that a flat increase will be approved unless opponents can offer some plan regarded as satisfactory for individual rent hikes to take care of special situations without undue delay.

The demand for a flat increase derives much of its support from complaints that machinery for special increases has broken down in many places, and that landlords face long delays in obtaining rent boosts to cover added costs.

• POLITICAL OBSERVERS IN WASHINGTON are interpreting the bitter attack by Senator Wayne Morse (R) of Oregon on Republican National Chairman Carroll Reece as in reality a stab at Senator Robert A. Taft.

They say Morse believes that Taft, powerful domestic policy maker of the Senate Republicans, personally kept him off the Senate foreign relations committee.

The committee assignment was one upon which the Oregonian had set high hopes. It is the blue ribbon committee of Congress. Beyond this aspect of the feud, Morse has long opposed Taft's labor views.

Informed quarters say that Morse is scuttling the 1948 pre-convention wind and is definitely in the camp of Harold E. Stassen, the only avowed GOP presidential candidate so far in the arena.

Morse is said to feel that he might be Stassen's running mate if the unexpected happens and the former Minnesota governor is nominated through a convention deadlock. Failing that, Morse would like to be in a Stassen cabinet—perhaps as secretary of labor.

CHAPTER THIRTEEN

WHEN SHERRY let herself into the familiar fuchsia-and-white foyer of the apartment Sunday night, the muted strains of Beethoven's Seventh Symphony washed out and around her in a glorious tide. Her mother, not Val, Sherry felt sure, was listening to the record player. And she probably had not the vaguest idea anyone had come in.

Sherry slipped off her coat and hat and put them away in the closet. Then she stood for a dreamlike moment, her arms crossed, her head tipped back, thinking of the week-end that was finished and feeling an odd reluctance at the thought of stepping back once more into the regular routine of her life. She always regretted the end of her visits with Steve. But this time the regret felt was sharper, oddly poignant, as though she had left a part of herself at the farm. It was Lex Morell who made the difference. Sherry was too honest not to face that fact squarely in her own mind, unwilling as she would have been to admit it to anyone else.

She gave herself a mental shake and moved toward the living room, her feet quiet on the deep carpet. In the doorway she paused as the music swept to its climax. Her mother was sitting relaxed in a tapestry-covered chair, her eyes closed, her feet on an ottoman. She was wearing a soft green hostess gown and above the dull color her face looked pale and tired without its customary accent of make-up. She looked almost old.

The thought of her mother as old startled Sherry. Somehow, Leda Kent had always seemed ageless, changeless, indestructible, to both her daughters. Yet now Sherry noted that there was more gray than she had realized in the dark hair, faint but discernible circles beneath the closed eyes, a sagging of the flesh under Leda's firm chin. Sherry thought: She works too hard, she's always worked too hard, trying to give Val and me everything.

And yet—Sherry couldn't be sure about Val, but she knew it was true in her own case—their mother had never made any effort to find out whether the things she gave them were what they wanted. A beautiful apartment at a good address, expensive clothes, schools that were attended by the daughters of wealthy people—things like these mattered to Leda, so she worked hard getting them for her daughters. But they didn't matter to Sherry, they didn't make her happy. Perhaps that was why she couldn't feel as grateful to her mother as she knew she should. When she was small, she had scarcely ever seen Leda. Nursemaids, housekeepers, a whole procession of servants had brought up Sherry and Val. Some of them had been all right, others had been dreadful. The two little girls had been afraid of the consequences if they complained to their mother. And Leda was away too much and too engrossed in her job to notice.

Sherry's thought broke as the record player automatically clicked off and silence took the place of the thrilling sound. Leda's brilliant dark eyes opened, giving instant life to her tired face. Then she saw Sherry, standing there in the doorway, and she smiled. "Hello, dear. I didn't hear you come in."

"Hello, Mother."

On a sudden impulse, Sherry crossed the room and sat on the arm of her mother's chair, leaning to press her young cheek against that of the older woman. She said: "You looked so tired, sitting there with your eyes closed. Are you?"

Leda shook her head. "Not particularly. But I have no make-up on and that's a mistake at my age. I'm going to bed soon."

"But you do work awfully hard," Sherry insisted. "And it isn't really necessary, darling. Val and I could take over, you know—we could get jobs—"

"Of course, you could," Leda said, patting her hand. "But there'd be no point in it. We have plenty of money, dear, over and above my salary. I've had good advice and made some very profitable investments."

Roger Bedloe, Sherry knew, was her mother's advisor in matters financial. She said, "But then—why do you go on working so hard? You simply drive yourself. You live and breathe your job, day after day—you haven't any time for rest or relaxation."

Leda objected, "But, Sherry, I love my job! That's why I live and breathe it, as you say. I'd be lost without it. The constant give and take, having to think fast to get ahead of the other fellow—it keeps me on my toes, alert. And I enjoy every minute of it. How strange that you shouldn't know that, dear."

After a moment Sherry said, "I suppose I did know it. I guess I just forgot how much your work means to you—more than anything else, really."

"What a thing to say," Leda reproached her. "You and Val mean more to me than anything else, you know that. I've always tried to do everything I could for you, to give you the best in life. I want so much for you both to be happy."

"Yes, I know, Mother."

Leda asked as the silence lengthened, "Did you have a nice weekend?"

Sherry nodded, her heart lifting at the memory. "Lovely. Mother, it's so beautiful at the farm, like another world. You should have gone, too."

Leda said ruefully, "It makes me shiver to think of it. The wind sweeps about so. Heaven knows, it's been bad enough in town. How are Steve and Aunt Pen?"

"Fine. Just as the same as always. They were sorry you and Val could not come out. Darling, I had such fun!"

"What did you do?" Leda asked.

"Do?" Sherry repeated. "Why nothing much, I guess."

It would have sounded silly to say, "We sat in front of the fire. Aunt Pen played the piano—lovely old songs. Then Lex couldn't sleep, so he and I drank hot milk in the kitchen and talked till two in the morning. And we slept late and had one of Aunt Pen's enormous breakfasts. We barely got to church in time—the sweet little red-brick church with the steeple. Later on, after dinner, Lex and I and Kippy took a long walk. It was like walking through fairytale—the snow, all white and unbroken, on either side of the path and crunching under our feet in that squeaky cold way. And the sun so bright it was almost blinding and the sky couldn't even have been so blue before. Lex was easier with me today—as though we were old friends. And that's the way I want it. Just to be his friend, to have him like me. I know he loves another girl, that he'll marry her someday. But we can still be friends, Lex and I—that won't take anything from her..."

No, you couldn't say things like that aloud.

NO MORE CHANGING TO GAS HEAT FROM OTHER FUELS

An emergency having been created by the unprecedented demand for gas for space heating purposes and the inability of the Company and its suppliers to purchase or obtain necessary pipe and equipment to make additional gas supplies to meet all present and prospective increases in demands, the following temporary rules governing gas and gas burning equipment for space heating purposes became effective March 1, 1947, and will remain in effect until amended or cancelled. This condition has been covered by a temporary order of the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio, dated February 28, 1947, which is summarized as follows:

NO residence or place of business depending upon fuel other than gas as its principal source of space heating shall be permitted to change to gas-fired equipment.

THE only exceptions to No. 1, shall be those few cases where unusual medical hardship is involved. Such exceptions shall be determined by The Gas Company after complete evidence satisfactory to the Company has been submitted.

NEWLY constructed premises with heating equipment exclusively designed for gas are eligible for gas heating upon proper application to The Gas Company.

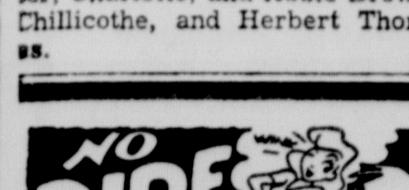

WORN out or outmoded gas heating equipment in existing buildings may be replaced with other gas-fired equipment provided the gas burning capacity is not increased and provided proper application is cleared with The Gas Company.

UPON discovering installations of gas heating equipment made in violation of these stated conditions, The Ohio Fuel Gas Company will give the customer written notice to disconnect such equipment. If such equipment is not disconnected from the lines within 10 days of receiving the written notice, the Company will disconnect the customer's complete gas service.

Copies of this Order by the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio are available for inspection at offices of The Gas Company and have been furnished all known dealers of major gas heating equipment in the territory we serve.

Your understanding attitude and excellent cooperation during these temporary emergencies has not gone unnoticed. We say gratefully, "Thank You . . . for keeping faith with us . . . We will not let you down."
